

A Parent's Rights Don't End at The School Parking Lot!

It's time to stop treating parents like intruders at their own children's school.

What can you do about it? There's good news:

In a WIN for parents, the Youngkin administration's education department has released revised policies on transgender issues in schools that put parents back in the driver's seat.

ACT NOW to ensure your school aligns with these revised policies:

- EMAIL YOUR SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS and ask them to align their policies with the revised "2023 Model Policies on the Privacy, Dignity, and Respect for All Students and Parents in Virginia's Public Schools."
- SIGN UP TO SPEAK—either in person or via video—at your school board meetings. Ask board members to take a vote as soon as possible to align with the parent-friendly, revised policies.
- JOIN YOUR VOICES with others by downloading the Protect Every Kid "speak up" tools:

Wondering What To Say?

Check out these speaking tips below!

- Schools can and should protect every single child equally and fairly. It is possible to do this without trampling on parents' constitutional rights and the privacy and safety rights of our kids.
- We need a balanced approach to this issue that respects all families in the district.
- Too many school board members are only recognizing a one-sided narrative. We urge you to consider the equally important perspective of teens and families who've experienced real harm caused by policies that cut parents out of the process. (For real-life stories, visit FamilyFoundation.org/ProtectEveryKid)
- It's time to clean up harmful policies that disrespect parents' rights to be involved in life-changing decisions in their children's lives and leave parents in the dark when sexual and gender-identity experimentation are promoted by school officials.
- We're asking you to take action now to align your district policies with the revised transgender-issue policies released by Gov. Youngkin's education department.
